RELIGIOUS UNREST BLAMED FOR DEATH GENERAL OBREGON

FUNERAL TRAIN STARTS FOR SONORA; CALLES MAY RETAIN OFFICE UNTIL 1930

MEXICO CITY, July 19. (AP)—Official announcement was made today that several more persons have been arrested in connection with the assassination of President-elect Obregon.

The identity of those arrested and the total number were not revealed and Chief of Police Zertuche declined to give out any further information until the investigation is completed.

Those previously arrested include Jose De Leon Toran, 23 year old art student accused of the crime, Emilia Casado, proprietor of the restaurant at Saint Angel where Obregon was killed and twelve employes of the restaurant.

MEXICO CITY, July 19. —(AP)—Search was intensified today for those whom President Calles termed the "intellectual directors" of the assassination of General Obregon.

General Obregon's body was enroute to his native state of Sonora, some 1,000 miles distant on the presidential train which he would hase used after his inauguration in December. The body will arrive at its resting place tomorrow.

As it left Mexico City thousands of Obregon followers raised their right hands and took a solemn oath to sustain his principles and to see that punishment was visited upon those responsible for his death. This was done at the instance of a member of congress who, as the oath was given, turned to President Calles standing nearby and said:

"We demand of you justice by the punishment of those guilty of murdering Obregon."

Slayer Is Identified.

Police identified the slayer as Jose De Leon Toran, 23, an art student and a native of Lagos, in the state of Jalisco.

President Calles in a signed statement announced that the assassin had confessed that his crime was motivated by religious fervor. He said also that the authorities had gained much information "complicating directly clerical action." The government was determined, he said, to punish not only the material author of the crime but also to punish "as examples" those found to be "intellectual directors of the deed."

General Antonio Rios Zertuche, installed as chief of police after the tragedy, announced that the prisoner "had commenced to talk." Emilio Casado, proprietor of the restaurant at San Angel where Obregon was killed, and 12 employes of that place were arrested and held for investigation. El Universal Crafico said that the mother and wife of the assissin were also under arrest.

Situation Is Quiet.

General Limon, chief of the presidential staff, announced that the situation throughout the republic continued tranquil despite the intense feeling which the slaying had engendered. The army was under orders to maintain peace and censorship was still in force. Excitement in the capital, which caused numerous enemies of Obregon to flee in fear of their lives, quieted considerably.

The permanent commission of congress was summoned to meet today to consider the political situation which has resulted from the assassination. Whether Calles would continue in office after his term expires in December or whether another would be elected to replace Obregon was still a matter of conjecture.

El Universal Grafico said clues leading to identification of the assassin included a telephone number found upon him. This was found to be that of a dry cleaning establishment where he had had a suit pressed.

The prisoner, subjected to continuous questioning during which even President Calles had tried to obtain information from him, was said unofficially to have refused to admit accomplices and to have insisted that he alone was responsible.

Find Religious Emblems.

He was stated to have lived at Guadalajara but to have come to Mexico City six months ago seeking work. Police asserted they found upon him a picture of the Catholic priest Miguel Augustin Pro-Jaurez, who was executed in connection with the attempt to assassinate General Obregon with bombs last November. A rosary and other religious emblems were also found.

"The criminal has already confessed his tragic action was motivated by religious fanaticism," President Calles stated. "Furthermore, the authorities have gained much information complicating directly clerical action in this crime.

"By my government, without being impressed for one moment for this new sombre system which is being practiced against our institutions, will renew its energy, and now announce to the nation that the liberal principles of the social revolution movement, which popular conscience affirmed eighteen years ago, can never be nullified."

He concluded:

"Finally I want to announce that the government will continue as heretofore within constitutional paths and with the requisite calmness and energy."

Calles May Keep Office.

This is construed by some as signifying that the president will not attempt to succeed himself. The Mexican constitution at present forbids direct succession of the president in two terms of office. Calles was elected on the slogan: "Effective suffrage; no re-election."

Various means of making such succession possible, however, were being discussed.

These included the appointment by congress of a provisional president to assume office on the expiration of Calles' term in December.

It was generaly believed that if this plan were followed that Aaron Saenz, former minister of foreign affairs and now governor Nuevo Leon, would be named provisional president. Saenz was among the foremost of Obregon's supporters and is a brother-in-law of one of Calles' daughters.

A general eletion might then be called and Calles offer himself for re-election without violating the clause in the constitution concerning direct succession.

Other suggestions were that a constitutional amendment allowing Calles to succeed himself in the present emergency might be asked or that the constitutional amendment that extends the presidential term to six years might be interpreted as applying to President Calles, who was elected for a four year term. This would retain him in office until 1930.

Censorship Removed.

MEXICO CITY, July 19. —(AP)—Censorship of news dispatches imposed after the assassination of President-elect Obregon was removed today.

RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE REPORT AWAITED BY DRY DEMOCRATS AT ASHEVILLE

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 19.—(AP)—Organization of the "southern dry anti-Smith democrats" was perfected today at the second executive session of the conference of southern dry democrats here. The name was formally adopted with approval of a report by a committee named yesterday to draw up a statement of purposes and a plan of procedure.

The committee reported today with a 1600 word platform and plan of procedure that was discussed privately for more than two hours.

The platform was expected to be made public at the close of the session, although its adoption was announced while the conference was working on appointment of a committee consisting of representatives from every southern state to plan ways and means of defeating Governor Alfred E. Smith.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 19.—(AP)—With more than 250 delegates in attendance the conference of Southern dry democrats meeting here to plan a campaign against Governor Smith turned its attention today to the report of its resolutions committee.

This group, charged with outlining a campaign program and preparing a statement of policies and purpose was organized at an executive session late yesterday under chairmanship of Dr. Arthur J. Barton of Atlanta, who with Bishop James Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, issued a call for the conference shortly after Governor Smith's nomination at Houston. The committee consisted of two representatives from each of the Southern States. The sub-committee was named to draft the resolutions.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League, was the principal speaker at the general session of the conference last night, to which the public was admitted.

She asserted that 5,000 women, members of her organization were opposed to Governor Smith, denouncing the nominee for his Tammany connections and his stand on prohibition.

"I have heard women in every state in the union say," Mrs. Nicholson declared, "that if Herbert Hoover was good enough for Woodrow Wilson, he was good enough for them and they would refuse to vote for Al Smith."

CHARGE BLIND MAN WITH MURDER AFTER DEATH OF FARMER

NPOPLAR BLUFF, Mo., July 19.—(AP)—W. C. Hill, 64, and totally blind, was in jail here today on murder charges growing out of the slaying last night of Clyde Wilson, 46, who lived with him in a farm house nine miles south of here.

Hill told officers Wilson had come home intoxicated and threatened to kill him. Hill said his son, Joseph, handed him a shotgun at his request and the two went outside the house, where Wilson rushed at him.

"I just touched the trigger, getting his location by his voice," the blind farmer said.

DRILLING RECORDS BEING SMASHED IN QUICK SUCCESSION

ELDORADO, Ark., July 19.—(AP)—A new kind of marathon, in which oil drillers are seeking to outdo each other in fast drilling is on near here.

Roy Hornsby, who says he is a cousin of Rogers Hornsby of the Boston Braves, started it when he broke the previous record, set in Gray county, Texas, by drilling a depth of 1001 feet in twelve hours. He was a champion but two days, however, for Arthur J. Tibbett crowded him out with a record of 1,080 feet in eleven hours.

Now Buster Lewis is out to beat Tibbett. He had drilled better than 650 feet in six and a half hour and said he would surpass Tibbett's mark before stopping.

Heir to Millions Starts Work For Firm As Flunkey

MILWAUKEE, July 19.—(AP)—William Woods Plankinton, Milwaukee, 21-year-old heir to $4,000,000 of the estate of his late father, announced today he would go to work as a "flunky" for a recently organized horticultural firm in New York.

He explained he wanted to make good "on his own," and that he believed he would have an opportunity to work up in the new firm.

"I chose a new firm because old firms are so conservative it probably would take me much longer to get to the top," he said.

BODY OF MEXICO'S FALLEN AIR HERO IS SPEEDING HOMEWARD

ACROSS COUNTRY WHICH HE HAD SOARED AS GOOD WILL MESSENGER TRAIN MOVES

ABOARD CARRANZA FUNERAL TRAIN, July 19.—(AP)—Across the country to which he had come as a member of good will, the broken body of Captain Emilo Carranza today was being swiftly borne back to his native land.

In the rear car of the special funeral train the shades are drawn. Heavy scent of lowers fills the air. Two soldiers' stand at attention at the head and foot of a bronze casket draped with the flags of the United States and Mexico and containing the body of Mexico's fallen idol.

In the baggage car ahead is the 'cracked up" airplane in which a month ago the flier winged away from Mexico City returning the good will flight of Colonel Lindbergh. The fuselage is twisted, the motor a shapeless, molten thing. One wheel lies nearby.

In the three remaining cars are his father, Sebastian Carranza, a military guard of honor consisting of four American army officers and fourteen enlisted men; Colonel Samuel Rojas, military attache of the Mexican embassy at Washington; Captain Juan Beristain, also of the Mexican army, and three newspaper correspondents.

Leaving New York at 4:50, the special train sped through the New Jersey countryside where a week ago the wings of Mexico's "Lone Eagle" failed him and he fell to his death.

Salute at Trenton.

As the train rolled slowly through Trenton, cannon boomed a 13-gun saulte, an honor usually paid only to a majors general. Thousands lined the tracks to watch the special slide slowly past as they did at all other cities along the way. No hamlet, however small, but had its quota of sorrowing men and women, who in silence watched the train pass.

The father of the Mexican air hero was profundly moved by the tribute being shown his dead son

"My son's death, I believe, has accomplished more than formal diplomacy could," he said. "What the American government and people haved one in showing true sympaty and understanding between two nations is something which Mexico cannot misunderstand."

At St. Louis, which will be reached at six o'clock tonight, the train will be stopped thirty minutes for special ceremonies.

The train will then be routed over the Missouri Pacific, Texas Pacific and International Great Northern railway lines to Laredo, Texas. There it will again be placed on a gun cassion and with full military honors escorted to the center of the international bridge and turned over to the Mexican government to be taken to the "city of palaces," for burial.

Flowers From Sky For Mexican Ace

TEXARKANA, July 19.—(AP)—An airplane circling low overhead will shower flowers on the funeral train of Captain Carranza, Mexico's martyr flier, as the cortege enters Texas here tomorrow morning. The plane will be piloted by C. E. Brower, with J. S. Friede, World War aviator, as a passenger.

Legionnaires of Texarkana post will form a reception committee, while the Legion band will sound taps as the train departs for the border.

Thousands of Texarkana citizens were expected to pay silent tribute as the funeral train enters the station.

Believes Calles Can Weather Storm

NEW YORK, July 19. —(AP)—Thomas Arnold Robinson, American engineer and son-in-law of President Calles of Mexico, believes his father-in-law is fully capable of meeting the governmental emergency caused by the assassination of President-elect Obregon.

Robinson and his wife, the former Ernestine Calles, arrived here yesterday.

"We grieve for Mexico in the loss of a great patriot and leader but President Calles is fully capable of meeting this and any character of government emergency," Mr. Robinson said. "I would like to urge that we Americans keep our judgments free from the influence of sensational and untrue rumors such as often sweep north from the border whenever anything untoward happens in Mexico. Obregon's death has been a shock, of course, but the government of Mexico is strong. Its foundation will not be shaken now.'"

THIRTY MINUTE GUN FIGHT IN ATLANTA PRISON WEDNESDAY

LONG TERM PRISONERS BATTLE GUARDS BUT FAIL TO EFFECT ESCAPE

ATLANTA, July 19. (AP)—John Boyd, Philadelphia slayer and Boston mail bandit, and Earl Garrison, Cleveland mail train robber were implicated in the attempted prison break yesterday with Roy Gardner and Joe Urbaytis, Warden John W. Shook announced this afternoon.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 19. —(AP)—Atlanta federal penitentiary was besciged for a time from within by two desperate prisoners armed with smuggled weapons last night.

With three other long-term convicts, they were in solitary confinement today while a guard was nursing a minor scalp wound, the only casualty of a 30 minute gun fight.

A near riot was precipitated during an exercise period in the prison yard about dusk, when Roy Gardner and Joe Urbaytis, serving 50 to 60 year terms for mail robbery and notorious as "escape artists," were seen at the inner wall. Guard Captain Clarence L. Parker and guard Buce who found the pair in the act of climbing an improvised ladder, were confronted with drawn revolvers. Bunce was clipped on the head.

Before the remainder of the prisoners knew what had happened, the plotters had marched Parker and two other guards who rushed up, through the first gate toward freedom. On nearing the second gate they opened fire on tower sentries, using the guards as shields. Balked in this effort because Captain Parker threw his keys through the gate grating, they surrendered to a score or so of armed guards, after a fierce exchange of bullets during which none was hit.

Meanwhile prisoners in the yard, left unattended set up a loud clamor. Guards later herded them into their cell blocks with difficulty. Both Gardner and Urbaytis have astonishing records for successful escapes. Gardner convicted of mail robbery in California, twice escaped while enroute to serve a 25 year term at McNeil Island, Washington, only to be recaptured. He finally made his way to freedom from the island, and later was captured by an Arizona mail clerk who found him riding in his car. For this attempt he drew another 25 year term.

Urbaytis is one of Toledo's most notorious criminals of the last decade, having participated in a $1,000,000 mail robbery there in 1921. He broke jail with two confederates the same year, and was at liberty three years although his companions were captured almost immediately. Apprehended in Columbus, Ohio, rooming house he was taken back to Toledo and convicted, and sentenced to an aggregate of around 60 years in prison.

GASTON B. MEANS WAS RELEASED FROM PRISON THURSDAY

WAS PROMINENT IN SENATE INVESTIGATION ATTORNEY GENERAL DAUGHERTY

ATLANTA, Ga., July 19.—(AP)—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent and prominent figure in the senate investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty, was released from the federal penitentiary here today.

He completed two 2-year sentences, which ran consecutively, by appearing before a United States commissioner and taking a pauper's oath of inability to pay two fines of $10,000, also imposed upon him. In lieu of payment of these fines he had served an extra 30 days imprisonment.

Means entered the penitentiary on May 22, 1925, after having been convicted in New York of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and attempted bribery in connection with the operations of the Craeger Glass Casket Company. Time allowed for good conduct gave him a substantial reduction in the aggregiate four year term.

First Assistant Attorney General Resigns His Place

AUSTIN, July 19.—(AP)—First Assistant Attorney General D. A. Simmons resigned today, effective August 1, to go to Houston and form a law partenership with Col. Thomas H. Ball.

Attorney General Claude Pollard has not announced who will be Simmon's successor. In a letter of resignation, Simmons assured his chief that "association with you and the force with which you have surrounded yourself, has been most pleasant." He recalled that when General Pollard apointed him in November, 1926, the general said he was "organizing a law office and not a political organization."

"I can affirm that you have adhered to that plan," Simons said.

OBREGON'S DEATH RECALLS PASSING OF SIX MEN WHO OPPOSED HIM IN POLITICS

Snores of Auto Sleepers Keep Others Awake

CHICAGO, July 19.—(AP)—There is no law against a Madison, Wis., resident sleeping in a Madison, Wis., automobile on Madison street, Chicago. But when the car happens to be stolen and its occupants snore, the law must take its course.

It took with it Harry Faber of Madison and William Lasker of Milwaukee, who parked in the Loop district at midnight and fell asleep. They snored and guests of a nearby hotel complained.

Police, investigating, found the sleepers garbed in United States marine corps uniforms and might have let them snore undisturbed had they not also found a pair of brass knuckles and two jimmies on the floor of the car.

(By The Associated Press)

Assassination of General Alvaro Obregon recalls violent deaths of six men at one time or another opposed to Obregon.

Of major opponents of General Obregon since his victory over Pancho Villa at Celaya in 1915, but one remains alive. That one is Adolfo De La Huerta, an exile at Los Angeles, now, but formerly provisional president of Mexico and head of the unsuccessful revolt against the Obregon administration in 1923-24.

Venustiano Carranza, president of Mexico, against whom Obregon led a revolt from his native state of Sonora, was driven from Mexico City by victorious Obregonistas and on the night of May 20, 1920, was shot while he slept in a house in the hills of Vera Cruz. Various charges were made as to the identity and connections of his assassin but the matter has never been settled.

Pancho Villa was killed on July 20, 1923. Obregon won his name as a military leader with his defeat of Villa at Celaya. In the first years of his administration as president he sent Villa back to his Durango ranch with a promise of government protection from his enemies. But Villa was always an unstable political quantity. He was killed from ambush near Parral, Chihuahua. The identity of his assassins was never fully established.

The presidential campaign of 1924 was hotly contested between Plutarco Elias Calles and General Angel Flores. Calles, friend of Obregon, won, while Flores went back to his Sinaloa home and complained that election officials—this was during Obregon's administration—had kept his followers away from the polls. Flores had a faculty for disturbing de facto governments. He died of what was said to be arsenic poisoning March 31, 1926. The malefactor was never apprehended.

Francisco Serrano and Arulfo Gomez announced their candidacies for president last year in opposition to Obregon, for whom the Mexican constitution had been changed to permit his race. Serrano was accused of revolt, and his bullet riddled body, attired in civilian clothes, was brought back to Mexico City, October 5.

Gomez kept a longer lease on life, but was captured by General Escobar and executed by a firing squad in the Vera Cruz hills November 5. There were many executions of minor figures in connection with the charges against these two.

The sixth man to die, Alfonso De La Huerta, cut little figure in Mexican politics other than he as brother of Adolfo De La Huerta, Obregon's one-time friend and later arch enemy, would naturally do. He accepted exile with his brother Adolfo, but in October, last year, he was drawn across the border at Nogales and shot as a rebel.

DISTRICT OFFICERS FREE TO NEGOTIATE WITH MINE OWNERS

FAMOUS JACKSONVILLE AGREEMENT THROWN INTO DISCARD AT CONFERENCE

INDIANAPOLIS, July 19. (AP)—District officers of the United Mine Workers of America today were free to negotiate with coal operators on any "mutually satisfactory" basis, provided all agreements be submitted to a district convention for referendum.

Thus one of the basic principles of the union policy in the bituminous coal fields—the uniform wage scale for union miners—was discarded by a decision yesterday of the international policy committee in an attempt to cope with the depressed conditions in the country.

With abandonment of the base wage, the famous Jacksonville agreement, which assured union miners $7.50 per day and $1.08 per ton from 1924 to 1927 was dropped as no longer an effective basis for wage negotiations. It was the expiration of this agreement April 1, 1927, which resulted in the present bituminous coal suspension.

It was made plain, however, that pending negotiation of new agreements the Jacksonville scale would prevail.

Many Miners Affected.

The new union policy will affect about 150,000 miners in the central competitive field (Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois) and the outlying districts of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and Nevada. Many of the miners in these fields have been idle since the suspension fifteen months ago.

Hope was expressed in miners' circles that the district agreements would result in resumption of operations. Indiana operators said they were ready to meet the miners in wage conferences and indicated they would demand the 1917 scale of $5 per day. Large Pennsylvania operators whose mines have been on a non union basis for nearly four years said they had definitely broken with the union and would not consider further negotiations.

The wage scale abandoned by the union had been in effect since 1920 when it was promulgated by a federal coal commission appointed by President Woodrow Wilson. A strike by miners in 1922 when they were suffering from a slump in coal production and consequent loss of pay resulted in a two year renewal. The union struck again in 1924 and the three year Jacksonville agreement resulted.

Peach Crop Best Past Several Years

CHICAGO, July 19.—(AP)—A peach of a time appears right at hand, according to the governmeAt, bureau of agricultural economics Georgia, the Carolinas, Washington and California have the best peach crop in years. The forecast of total production this season has been increased to nearly 66,000,000 bushels, which is 40 per cent more than the 1927 crpp.

ABDUCTOR COMMITS CRIME MERELY FOR THRILL IS BELIEF

STRANGE OCCURRENCE IN SAN ANTONIO BEING PROBED BY POLICE

SAN ANTONIO, July 19.—(AP)—Police today searched for an abductor who apparently plies his trade merely for the kick he gets out of it.

S. W. Meyerhardt and Miss Rhea Lawrence attended a theatre last night and returned to her home. Just as they pulled up to the curb a stranger shoved the muzzle of a gun into Meyerhardt's ribs and entered the rear seat. The man forced his victim to drive forty-five miles in the country and then gagged him and bound him to a tree with baling wire.

Miss Lawrence he forced to drive back to town. After entering the city limits the man left the car and ordered Miss Lawrence to drive on home. This she attempted to do, but was involved in a collision which injured her slightly. Police heard the story and started a search for Meyerhardt. A farmer living near where the victim had been trussed up discovered him and notified the police of his whereabouts early today. Neither Meyerhardt nor Miss Lawrence was robbed and the abductor did not offer to harm her.

Arrested on Charge Narcotic Violation

"Piggy" Highnote and Gaston Jones, a negro, were taken to Dallas Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to answer charges of alleged violation of the narcotic act. The pair were arrested Wednesday by Deputy U. S. Marshall Nance and City Officer Dave Seaton.

ATTACK ON TEXAS ELECTION LAWS IS MADE BY NEGRO

SAN ANTONIO NEGRO ATTORNEY WANTS TO VOTE IN DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

SAN ANTONIO, July 19.—(AP)—Attacks on the Texas law which permits the democratic party to exclude negroes from its primary elections was launched in federal court here today when J. G. Wimberly, negro attorney, petitioned force the party to allow him to vote.

Wimberly attacked validity of the law on the grounds that in Texas the primary is in fact the election and that a law which permits the party to exclude him from the primary in fact permits it to exclude him from the election.

Wimberly asks for an injunction restraining county clerk Jack Burke and John K. Weber, democratic county chairman, from refusing him a ballot. An alternate plea in the petition asks for a mandatory injunction forcing the same plaintiffs to allow him to vote. Judge Duval West ordered a hearing on the petition for Saturday, July 21.

The Texas law was recently amended to give political parties powers to lay down qualifications for membership. The democratic state executive committee is a meeting at Waco made color one of the qualifications for affiliation with the party. Wimberly's petition asks the judge to hold the state law and also the resolution of the committee unconstitutional.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION LABEL

MIGRATIONS.

Authorities on matters relating to population are arriving at more or less definite conclusions with respect to the conditions which govern population movements that bear closely upon the policies of government.

It was a long span between the practice of importing labor into the United States in the form of indentured servants and the labor contract law which puts the bars down upon contract labor from abroad. It was another long jump to adoption of the present system of limiting upon a quota basis the number of immigrants allowed to come into the country. Each of these steps was marked by the claim of the American people themselves to first rights to the land and opportunities of their country. But back of all the barriers set up anywhere to the immigration tide have been working persistently the natural forces for readjustment of populations. Pent up in one direction, the population tide overflows in another. Sometimes this is accompanied by war; at other times it is effected peacefully.

In the last analysis, oceans and aridity have been the chief physical forces in the direction of population movements of the past. Oceans are no longer a barrier to the tides of population; the areas of nonfertility still govern to some extent. Where man has been able to make the desert blossom as the rose he has done much to relieve the pressure of over-population.

Had not the Americans provided a safety-valve for crowded Europe that troubled continent would have packed in still more wars among its many. Recognizing this fact, Europe fears immigration restriction here.

THE MORTGAGE VINDICATED.

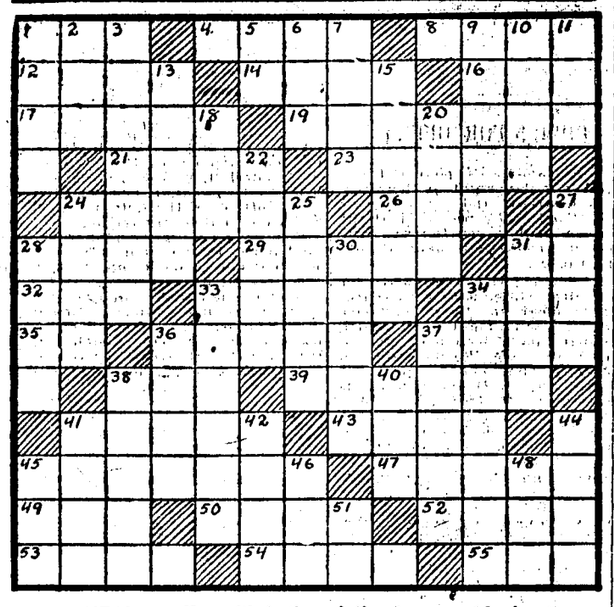

The mortgage was the chief stock in trade of writers of the old-time melodrama and of the cheap novel that preceded it. In their hands the claim against the old homestead or the newly-built cottage of the poor but virtuous young hero became a weapon as deadly as a woman's tongue. According to their way of presenting the matter, the man who put a mortgage on his land or house placed himself at the mercy of some miserly old Shylock, who thenceforth devoted himself to plotting the ruin of the mortgagee in order that he might possess himself of the property in question.

The crux of many a 10-cent matinee hinged upon the appearance of this old skinflint to dispossess the unfortunate widow or the struggling young hero on the day the mortgage fell due, with no funds in bank with which to meet it. And doubtless a lot of that sort of think actually was practiced in real life in bygone days.

But not so now. Today the mortgage is a recognized business instrument of vital importance in 75 per cent of all real estate transactions. It is not a sign of poverty, but of thrift, and nobody forecloses a mortgage except when driven to it by dire extremity.

And so the ancient horror of the mortgage that might spell ruin has been eliminated by the understanding that the mortgage can become a means of profit to holding and ownership that without it would be impossible.

WHAT IS HIGHBROW?

It was about time that someone came to the defense of the "highbrow." On principle of giving a dog a bad name and then hanging him, it has been a habit to single out an individual who differs from the common run of mankind, and by calling him a "highbrow" to attempt to heap ridicule on him.

If this term were applied only to someone who by affecting an interest in things literary and artistic for the sole purpose of being different from most men, then the obloquy which this term conveys might be justified. If this individual cultivates the freakish in art, whether in music or painting or literature, he is beyond the reach of any ridicule leveled at him.

But the word is not always so applied. It is used often to designate the individual who in his thinking has gone somewhat beyond the depth of the average man. Nor are we always at pains to note whether such deeper thinking is about matters that should concern us greatly. In many of the social sciences there are depths as yet unsounded as far as the average man is concerned; there are great stretches of information and theory on which many so-called highbrows are not at work.

Their findings in those fields may turn out to be of great help to mankind, if toward these students is adopted the same attitude of respect, which is now held toward chemist or physicist. Why should man in his ideas and thinking be satisfied with the second-rate and the superficial? If sound thinking and an intense interest in things mechanical result in producing a better car for less money or any other more desirable mechanical contrivance, it is accepted without saying of the innovator that he is a high-brow. Why not do the same thing in the realm of ideas?

We should not delay too long in making plans for the extension of the city limits. Another government census will be taken in 1930 and Corsicana should be in the 20,000 class.

The human skull, declares a sceintist, is about the same general size and thickness as it was 25,000 years ago, thus destroying one of the most settled convictions of our Office Cynic.

AUSTIN, July 18.—(AP)—Governor Moody, running for re-election, has spent $2,242.41 in his campaign since July 2, and has incurred unpaid expenses of $255.77, his second account, filed with the Secretary of State Wednesday, showed.

The governor listed contributions totaling $4,982.50, two of them being $500 by L. A. Schreiner and R. S. Sterling, chairman of the state highway commission. Contributions of $250 each were listed for C. M. Caldwell, F. Andrews, J. A. Baker, and N. D. Buie.

First expense account of the governor totaled only $107, of which $75 was contributed. He has not appointed a campaign manager.

George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, and Claude Pollard, attorney general, up for re-election, both are close competitors for light expense honors. Terrell has spent 22 cents and Pollard nothing, besides their initial outlay of $100 each for getting their names on the ticket. Terrell told of spending 18 cents for a registered letter and four cents for stamps.

Alvin Owsley's second account in his race for the United States senate totaled $577.44 and that of his campaign manager, B. W. George, $7,408.58. No contributions were listed.

BOLL WEEVIL GETS PRAISE FOR FARM LIFE IMPROVEMENT

SAN ANTONIO, July 18.—(AP)—The boll weevil, usually the object of invective when farmers gather, was praised today as being responsible for the present improvement in farm profits, farm living conditions, and agricultural practice at the opening session of the sixth annual South Texas short course.

O. B. Martin of College Station, director of the Texas A. & M. Extension Service, declared that the menace of the boll weevil had forced farmers to adopt modern methods and was directly responsible for the inauguration of demonstration service.

"The farm and home demonstration work was first originated to combat the boll weevil," he said. "The first farm demonstration ever held was 25 years ago when Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, prominent educator and agricultural statesman, showed Texas farmers how to grow cotton under boll weevil conditions by the use of cultural and crop rotation practices at Terrell, Texas.

"From this movement started in Texas has grown the network of farm demonstration work which now covers the country.

TREMENDOUS CROWD IN ATTENDANCE UPON WOODS RALLY HERE

CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY AND OTHERS ARE HEARD AT COURT HOUSE

A great crowd of Navarro county voters, both men and women, assembled on the lawn of the Navarro county court house Wednesday evening in response to the announcement that there would be a LeGrand J. Woods for County Attorney rally. There were voters from practically every voting precinct in the county, it was stated by Chairman Sam M. Kerr, who was master of ceremonies. Mr. Woods, A. P. Mays, Joe Simkins, Richard Mays, Fred Upchurch and several others were heard and cheered by the assembled throng.

Band music was furnished while the crowd assembled by the State Home Band under the direction of Joel Trimble, and after every available seat had been occupied and many chairs brought and also taken and practically every foot of available standing room within sight and hearing of the speaker's stand occupied S. M. Kerr called the crowd to order and made a short talk in which he stated he had known L. J. Woods for many years and had also known his forbears in this county, asked a hearing for the speakers who were to follow and introduced Mr. Woods, who was the first speaker of the evening.

Cheering and applause greeted Mr. Woods and there was cheering and applause at frequent intervals throughout his speech, as well as those of the other gentlemen who occupied the speaker's stand. Mr. Woods referred to his campaign of two years ago, stating that he had then promised to make it hard for the bootleggers, that he had kept his promise, giving a record of convictions and acquittals and cases dismissed. He declared he had been faithful to his trust and that the charges that had been brought against him were untrue. Mr. Woods held his audience's close attention throughout his presentation of his candidacy.

Judge A. P. Mays was the next speaker and he sailed into his subject with his characteristic vigor and delivered a speech that was interspersed with pleas for consideration of the candidacy of Legrand Woods for re-election to the office of county attorney and statements regarding the charges against the candidate. After reciting the history of the case at some length he made an eloquent plea for his friend and asked that he be returned to office by a large majority of the votes of the Navarro county suffragists.

Joe Simkins was the next speaker and he followed along the same lines practically as the previous speakers, as did Hon. Richard Mays, who made the closing talk for Mr. Woods. Mr. Mays stated that he had believed himself completely out of politics but had hit the trail back again. He closed his talk with a quiet and eloquent plea for support of LeGrand Woods for the office he seeks. Messrs. Ellis, Dorsey and Few of Ellis county, members of the jury which tried the ouster suit against Mr. Woods, each made short talks, as did Jerry Scott of Frost.

Calls were made for Fred Upchurch, who was in the audience, and although badly handicapped by a sore throat and hoarseness, he presented his candidacy for district judge and was also given applause frequently. The meeting was adjourned at 11 o'clock.

SEVERAL ARRESTED AFTER STAGING OF HOT DEMONSTRATION

VIENNA, July 19.—(AP)—Several persons, including a woman, were under arrest today after participating in a demonstration for Colonel Gustave Wolfe, who was sentenced to prison yesterday for one year on a charge of treason. Wolff, who is leader of the Austrian monarchist party, was charged with having invited Hungary to send an army into Austria to seize Bela Kun, once Comunist ruler of Hungary and now wanted there on charges of murder.

A crowd estimated at 2,000 gave Colonel Wolff a rousing ovation outside the court after sentence had been pronounced. They cried: "Long live the Kaiser, down with the republic."

A woman placed a laurel wreath with the imperial colors on Wolff's head. Police finally broke up the demonstration, making several arrests.

W. J. ROCHELLE, WIFE AND SON BACK FROM VISIT TO DES MOINES

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rochelle and son, Billy, have returned from Des Moines, Iowa, where they attended the Lions International convention last week. Mr. Rochelle who is secretary of the Corsicana Lions club, was the delegate from the local club to the convention.

The trip was made in a special DeLuxe pullman train on the Rock Island lines for the Texas delegation of 140 people. The Texas delegation left Fort Worth, July 8, and the first stop was in Oklahoma City where the visitors were entertained during their nine-hour stay by the Oklahoma City Lions club and citizens. The Texans were taken out to the Lions club park where theu nderprivileged are aided. A barbecue was also given the visitors. The second stop was in Wichita, Kansas, where three hours were spent and each member of the party was given a free airplane ride. Mr. and Mrs. Rochelle and son rode in the plane which won the Dole flight.

A stop was made in Kansas City for eight hours Monday and an automobile dire over the city was enjoyed. A banquet was served and a program carried out.

Tuesday, July 10, the train arrived in Des Moines and the convention opened at one o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Rochelle said that the town was turned over to the visiting Lions. Addresses appeared on the program from time to time and Mr. Rochelle said that this was the best convention in the history of Lionism. The program of the convention was under the direction of Wesley Westfall, Mason City, Iowa, past president of Lions International.

Ben A. Fuffin of Richmond, Va., was elected president for the ensuing year. Julian C. Hyer of Fort Worth, international director, was elected third vice-president of Lions International. The Texas delegation campaigned for Mr. Hyer and secured the withdrawal of all other candidates for the place to make his selection unanimous.

Mr. Rochelle added that he would make a complete report of the convention at a near date before the regular meeting of the Corsicana club.

The reports at the convention stressed the worked during the past year in the underprivileged work and also in civic advancement.

GOVERNOR SMITH TALKS TO REPORTERS OF EVERYTHING BUT POLITICS; MEET DAILY

ALBANY, N. Y., July 19.—(AP)—Although Governor Smith is showing a reluctance to say much for publication about the presidential outlook until after his notification, he sees newspapermen every day and talks freely with them on nearly every subject except politics.

As governor, the democratic presidential nominee made it a practice to see reporters twice daily—evening newspapermen before noon and representatives of morning papers late in the day. Now he has one press conference a day—usually shortly after noon—and he even holds them on Sunday as an accommodation to the correspondents.

When the governor is spending the day at the executive mansion as he often is during this hot weather, the reporters are invited to meet him in a reception room to the right of the front hall where on the walls, ledges and stands there is a profusion of family photographs.

If he is busy at his offices in the state capitol they see him there, where he sits behind his desk, cigar in mouth, in no hurry either to start the conference or end it. When the weather is oppressive, he greets his interviewers with coat and vest off, suspenders taking the place of the belt worn by many men.

As the governor chats and fences verbally with the dozen or more men who "cover" him for newspapers, a glass of ice water is always at his elbow. Throughout the conference he constantly mops his perspiring brow and drinks water.

Since the Houston convention the nominee has declined to discuss his personal plans or campaign arrangements. In due time he advises his admirers, announcements will be made. Until then he is leaving it to his political lieutenants, chief among them his friend, John J. Raskob, national committee chairman, to work out details, and make such announcements as are advisable.

CANDIDATES WILL PRESENT CLAIMS AT VARIOUS PRECINCTS

VOTERS OF ALL SECTIONS OF COUNTY HEAR CLAIMS OF RIVALS FOR OFFICE

County candidates spoke at Rushing Wednesday night in their regular appearance and a county-wide L. J. Woods rally was held at the Navarro county courthouse lawn. Good crowds were on hand at both appearances.

Col. Alvin Owsley, candidate for the United States senate, is scheduled to speak on the courthouse lawn Thursday night at 8 o'clock and plans have been made for a large crowd. A Woods rally is scheduled Thursday night at Kerens and a Davis rally is scheduled at Mildred. A number of other Woods and Davis rallies will likely be held in a number of precincts during the remainder of the campaign.

Friday night, July 20, the candidates will speak at Blooming Grove and Saturday afternoon the candidates will appear in Kerens in the interest of their respective candidacies.

Monday night, July 23, the candidates will be in Mildred.

Tuesday night, July 24, a county wide Hawkins Scarborough for district judge rally is scheduled at the Navarro county courthouse lawn at 8:15 o'clock. It is understood that a number of speakers will be on the program.

Wednesday night, July 25, the candidates will trek to Raleigh and Thursday night, July 26, the candidates for district, county and precinct offices will close the official speaking schedule with a county-wide affair at the courthouse lawn. The largest crowd in years is expected at this affair, which will be the final "big shot" prior to the Democratic primaries to be held Saturday, July 28. The Thursday night, July 26, date will officially end the schedule adopted by the candidates early in the campaign.

Friday night, July 27, a meeting will be held at Pursley and all candidates will be allowed to present their claims, according to an announcement made Thursday by G. B. Moore. Mr. Moore stated that there was a large auditorium there and that a large crowd was expected.

"SNOBBISHNESS" HURLED AT SOCIETY FOLK WHO SWIM AT FASHIONABLE NEWPORT BEACH

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—Society folk who bathe at the ultra-fashionable Bailey's Beach at Newport, have been accused of "snobbishness" for a reputed bar to members of the theatrical profession.

Dorothy Jardon, opera singer, who is the wife of Captain Harry Oelrichs, nephew of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, was so peeved over it all that she summoned reporters to the offices of the Actors' Equity and gave vent to her feelings.

"The whole thing is snobbish and un-American," she said. "I have just enough Irish in me to give (her) a swat in the eye."

"I know many actors and actresses who are ladies and gentlemen of the highest type. So-called society people are glad enough to call upon the theatrical profession for aid in giving benefits. And they dance with them in night clubs and cabarets. Why aren't they good enough to associate with as social equals?"

Miss Jardon, who sails for Europe on Saturday to sign an operatic contract, said she personally had experienced no lack of cordiality.

She was especially exercised over a statement in a theatrical magazine and attributed to William K. Young, superintendent of Bailey's Beach, in which he was quoted as saying that no actors or actresses would be allowed on Bailey's Beach during the Newport Casino theatre season and that "nobody of consequence in social circles would have the players as their guests during the morning bathing hours."

Mr. Young denied at Newport that any slight toward the theatre folk was intended.

COURT RULES LOVE HAS NO CAUSE FOR LEGAL COMPLAINT

SAN ANTONIO, July 17.—(AP)—State Senator Thom. B. Love of Dallas lost his fight to have his name printed on the Cameron county primary ballot today when the fourth court of civil appeals denied him a writ of mandamus against the Cameron county democratic executive committee. The committee had refused to print his name on the ballot as a candidate for lieutenant governor because of Love's announcement that he would not support the democratic presidential nominee, Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York.

The Cameron county committee also barred the names of Mrs. Edith Wilmans of Dallas and William E. Hawkins of Houston, candidates for governor for the same reason that it omitted Love's name.

The only appeal is to the supreme court and to facilitate such an appeal both sides agreed today to waive the customary two weeks notice for a motion for a rehearing.

All Justices Concur.

The decision which was fully concurred in by the justices, recognized the "right of any American citizen to change his political theories and party affiliations," but declared that "when such a change is contemplated justice to his former party demands that he should not seek its honors or emoluments." The opinion was written by Chief Justice W. S. Fly.

Discussing a candidate's obligations to his party, the opinion saidf "He cannot weaken or destroy his moral and legal obligations to suppor the nominee for president and vice-president named by the national democracy by crossing his fingers at the time he signs the pledge, afterwards remarking in an undertone 'I will not vote for Al Smith if he is nominated.'

"By no such quibbling," the court continues, "mental reservation or secret evasion, can a man absolve himself from a solemn pledge voluntarily made."

Would Uphold Disloyalty.

"To uphold such a doctrine," the opinion continues, "would make a football of the statutory pledge and place disloyalty upon a pedestal."

Touching Love's affiliation with the democratic party, the ruling says:

"Affiliation is an alliance with an institution or organization and he cannot claim affiliation with a party kho is organizing and working against the nominees and seeking to elect nominees of an opposing party. Supporting the nominees is the supreme test of party affiliation."

The court then holds that Love should have had his name removed from the party consideration after the Beaumont convention.

"When Love took the vow of loyalty to the nominee of the democratic party in order to enter a primary as a delegate to the state convention at Beaumont, he had every reason to believe that Governor Smith of New York would be the democratic nominee for president, and if his conscience demanded that he should not vote for him, he should not have taken the vow. But in honor and good faith would have had his name removed from the state ticket and affiliated with the party whose national nominee is working. That action would have met the demands of his conscience and removed him from a position subjecting him to just criticism.

Concerns Single Case.

"It is not the intention of this court to censure and criticize the actions of those who have been democrats but now forsake the party, and enter the ranks of the republican party, but its opinion is confined and restricted to the case now under consideration and case of like character which may arise hereafter.

"This court will not lend itself to any far fetched construction of the powers of the state executive committee, as would deprive the constituent committees of the party of defense against any fraud attempted to be perpetuated on the loyal members of the party. This court is not prepared to hold that the democratic executive committee of Cameron county cannot in self defense and in defense of its loyal democratic constituency refuse to place on its primary ticket the names of men seeking office while admitting that they have violated their obligations of loyalty to the party, and intend to carry their disloyalty to the extent of combining with the arch enemies of democracy in defeating its highest candidate, and thereby cause demoralization if not disintegration of the party."

Will Seek Supreme Court Mandamus

DALLAS, July 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Edith Wilmans, candidate for governor, declared here today that she would seek a supreme court mandamus forbidding the counting of the Democratic primary vote in Cameron, Galveston and Val Verde counties if her name was not placed on the ballots of those counties.

Mrs. Wilman's name together with those of Judge William E. Hawkins, Breckenridge gubernatorial candidate, and State Senator Thomas B. Love, Dallas, candidate for lieutenant governor, were left off the primary ballot in those counties because they had announced they would not support Governor Smith for president.

Court Upholds Barring.

SAN ANTONIO, July 17.—(AP)—Democratic candidates in Texas who refuse to support the party nominee may be barred from a place on the primary ballot, the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals ruled here today.

The court upheld the action of the Cameron county district court which refused a write of mandamus compelling the county executive committee to print the names of State Senator Thomas B. Love, a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, on the county ballot because Love had publicly announced that he would not support the party presidential nominee, Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York. Love had maintained that he was entitled to a place on the ballot because he had been duly certified by the state Democratic Executive committee.

IN MEMORY OF LITTLE JAMES E. IVIE.

It is with a sad heart I write this. On Saturday night, July 7, the death angel visited our home and took a sweet little baby, James Elgin Ivie. He was sick only five days. He was born July 10, 1926. He lacked three days of being two years old.

Death has stroked its icy hands
On one we loved so well,
And took him home with him
Forever there to dwell.

Our darling one has left us,
He has gone to dwell on high,
He is living in that country
Where they never say good-bye.

No more will we hear his laughter
Or those smiles so bright to see
But up in the Glory World
Him we hope there to see.

A darling one from us is gone
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.

Now let's all live for Jesus,
And meet him over there,
Where all is peace and joy
In that home so bright and fair.

He is free from earthly troubles,
He is wrapped in spotless white,
He will forever live with Jesus,
In that land of pure delight.

When our journey here is ended,
And the Savior calls us home,
Let us be prepared to meet Him
In that bright and happy home.

We will all be sad and lonely without him, and will mourn our loss, but will think of him as an angel leading us to a bright, beautiful home where he is waiting to bid us welcome to a home not made with hands.

Written by one who loved him,
AN AUNT.

New York Cotton Steady.

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 10 to 14 points in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables and failure of the weather report to show rains in the dry sections of the southwest.

October sold up to 21.58 at the start, but offerings increased after the call, and the market became nervous and unsettled. While no further notices were reported July was relatively weak, under liquidation, selling off to 20.98 or 24 points net lower. The near month weakness may have promoted some liquidation of later deliveries.

Talk of improving weather conditions in the eastern belt seemed to offset the absence of rain in West Texas. October sold off to 21.12 or 32 points net lower, with active months generally showing net loss of 25 to 32 points. Prices were a few points up from these figures at midday, with the market steadier on covering. Trading was quiet.

Futures closed steady, 10 @ 20 points lower; spot quiet; middling 21.55.

New Orleans Cotton Steady.

NEW ORLEANS, July 19.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady but developed a reactionary tendency soon after the start under selling induced by reports of rains on the western drought section.

Firmer Liverpool cables accounted for an early gain of 7 to 8 points. October trading at 20.94 and December 20.80. This advance was soon lost in the flurry of selling that followed publication of private advices of precipitation in West Texas where absorbed October had sagged to 20.75 and December 20.68, or 28 to 10 points below the opening highs and 11 points under the previous close.

The market continued to decline during the morning under selling based on western rain reports and October ultimately sold at 20.55 and December 20.48, or 38 to 39 points below the highs and 31 points under the previous close.

The detailed weather report showed only a few showers in the west thus disproving the early advices of relief in the drought section, this induced covering and rebuying and by mid-session the market had recovered 8 to 9 points from the lows. Trading was quite moderate.

Federal Probers of Patronage Bartering To Report Finally

BILOXI, Miss., July 19.—(AP)—In recess until tomorrow the federal grand jury sifting charges of alleged "bartering" of public offices in Mississippi today was making plans to report finally to Judge Edwin R. Holmes. The brief session was forecast for Friday with the probability that an indictment or two in addition to those already returned in partial reports against seven men charging conspiracy to violate the law against the sale of public office might be brought.

To The Voters of Navarro County:

The campaign is now drawing to a close, and my candidacy for County Judge is with you. I have made a clean fight, and at all times have stressed the importance to the people of the office of County Judge.

I have lived in Navarro county for more than fifty years, and in Corsicana for more than thirty years, and am confident that the Democratic voters of Navarro county know all about me, both public and private, as a citizen who has always devoted his time and means to the upbuilding of Navarro county. I have always stood on the moral side of every question affecting the welfare of my county. If elected, I promise the people a clean, honest, and efficient administration of the county's affairs.

I submit my candidacy upon my record as a citizen, and upon the strength of the fact that for more than thirty years I have worked for the upbuilding of my native county.

Yours very truly,
CLAY NASH.

CONNALLY HEARD TUESDAY EVENING BY LARGE AUDIENCE

MARLIN CONGRESSMAN PRESENTS CLAIMS FOR ELEVATION TO SENATE

"When a man claims to be the only man in the senate who has accomplished anything, he is a false alarm," Congressman Tom Connally declared Tuesday evening discussing the claims of the incumbent senator, in placing his candidacy before a large number of Navarro county voters on the courthouse lawn. He challenged Mayfield's claims of authorship for a number of measures passed by congress, and asserted that he was merely the tool of "the big business interests who were attempting to gain control of the senate." He scored Mayfield for leaving the ranks of the democrats and voting with the republicans on several occasions.

Senator J. H. Woods presided at the meeting Tuesday night, and after calling the meeting to order, explained briefly that the purpose of the gathering was to learn something of the United States senate, the most powerful legislative body in the world. He traced the history of the senate from its formation in 1789, explaining that the purpose behind its formation was to heal the discontent between the various colonies on the representation question. He showed how the body had developed into an invaluable check on the executives of the nation.

Senate High Places.

He asserted that the dignity of representing the nation in the senate was almost equal to that of the presidency. He referred to the former method of electing senators, stating that Senator Morris Sheppard was the last man to be elected by the legislature in 1913. He then presented C. L. Jester to introduce the speaker.

Judge Jester announced that he was serving in the stead of Congressman Rufus Hardy, and that Judge Hardy had told him that "no man stood higher in congress" than Tom Connally. The speaker asserted that the crying need of Texas was fit representation in the senate, which has not been the case in the past six years.

Mr. Jester stated that he had known the guest of the evening for thirty years, and briefly traced his career through Baylor University, the University of Texas, the Spanish-American war, county-attorney for Falls county, and his election to congress in 1916. He recalled that during his twelve years in congress he had been opposed only twice and had won decisive victories on both occasions.

He declared that the candidate was one of the five or six outstanding democrats in congress, and that he was a fit representative for the commonwealth of Texas, a fit companion for Coke, Culbertson, Mills and Sheppard.

Among those seated on the platformer with Congressman Connally were Mayor J. S. Murchison, C. L. Jester, Senator J. H. Woods, J. S. Halley, H. C. Ballew, who was captain of Connally's company during the Spanish American war, S. H. Jack, C. W. Taylor, H. S. Melear, L. Treadwell, Congressman Luther A. Johnson, W. P. McCammon, A. A. Allison, and Albert Berry of Mexia.

Congressman Johnson and C. L. Jester went to Ennis Tuesday afternoon and escorted Connally to Corsicana.

Pays Tribute to Mills.

In his introductory remarks, the speaker paid tribute to the memory of Roger Q. Mills, and recalled his service along with Judge Hardy. He declared that Congressman Luther Johnson was one of the finest and most capable members of the house. He also recalled having served in the legislature with Hon. Richard Mays. He complimented Corsicana on its progress. Taking up his qualifications for the office of senator, Connally said that his twelve years of service in the house had given him much valuable experience for service in the upper body, and that during his tenure of office he had gone on record repeatedly on every important issue in the campaidn.

He declared that as a member of congress he was sworn to uphold the constitution of the United States and that the eighteenth amendment was a part of that document; he said, he declared, voted for every measure and appropriation for the upholding, defending and enforcing of the amendment.

He stated further that he had always been in favor of local option and prohibition and that he did not expect to execute an about face. He declared that the democratic party had been known for keeping its promises and that it would redeem its pledge incorporated in the platform for the eighteenth amendment.

Although it was not an issue in the senatorial campaign, the speaker said that he favored the party plank.

Favors Farm Relief.

Taking up farm relief, Connally asserted that he favored the plank adopted by the party and that he was pledged to any measure that would equalize agriculture with manufacturing and the other industries.

The chief function of the senate is to control the foreign affairs of the nation in its dealings with all other countries, the speaker said, and he offered his years of experience on the house foreign relations committee as a real qualification for office.

Recalling a part of Mayfield's campaign speech in which he recounts his legislative achievements, Connally answered Mayfield's challenge by saying that the senator had done so much that nothing else was left to do. Recalling the senator's offer of a suit of clothes to the person who could get one of the candidates to point out a measure which they had passed through congress, he warned anyone taking up the offer to be sure they secured a new suit and not "the second hand one Mayfield used in 1922 consisting of one large bed sheet." Considerable laughter and applause greeted this sally, with cries of "it's done wore out," "he's trying to get rid of it," and "he's tired of it," heard from various parts of the audience.

Connally announced that with the exception of his first two years in the house, the republicans have been overwhelmingly in control and that those two years were during the World war when party lines were disbanded and the congress of the United States was devoting its time to bringing about a successful close to the conflict. Further, he stated, that the man who was constantly adding to the overburdened statute books, was not always as valuable as the man who was engaged in defending, resisting and modifying measures.

Legislative Record.

Taking up his legislative endeavors, the congressman said that it was on record that in 1921 he proposed an amendment to the house naval appropriations bill directing the president to call for a conference among the leading nations in an attempt to stop the mad rush each was making to secure the greatest armament, but at the same time providing for the United States to keep step with the leaders. This measure was voted down in the republican house, but Senator Borah introduced an amendment in the senate to the same effect that was passed and the disarmament congress of 1921 resulted.

The speaker declared that more important than the money they voted, was the direction given the statesmen of the nations to settling their disputes by arbitration and logic. He stated that the people of the world were rapidly turning against war as a means of settling their disputes.

While he was pledged to support of his country and would support it vigorously at all times, but that he was also pledged to making this country a leader in the movement to settle disputes by logic and arbitration rather than force of arms.

The outstanding planks in the platform of the democratic party were named as the censure of "corruption in high office," and "the spending of large sums in elections," and Connally declared that the moneyed interests of the country were making a strenuous attempt to gain the control of the senate. He asserted that he was against the domination of the senate by big business and that he was after the seat of Earle B. Mayfield to defeat that purpose.

Denies Mayfield Claim.

Taking up Mayfield's legislative claims to the authorship of the measure providing for the scientific investigation of the uses of cotton, Connally said that he himself introduced the first measure in the house appropriation bill of 1926 providing $50,000 for this purpose. The measure was defeated in the house by two votes. When the bill went to the senate, Senator Harris of Georgia added a similar amendment, and carried it through the committee. When it came to the floor, he asserted that Mayfield offered an amendment to the Harris amendment, changing the verbiage to the original house amendment offered by Connally, which passed and became a law. "Yet I killed Cock Robin All by Myself."

Connally credited the measure for accurate reports on the cotton carry-over to Congressman Marvin Jones of Amarillo. The Jones measure passed the house and Mayfield allowed the bill to die on the senate calendar, while he submitted an identical proposition and secured its passage through senatorial courtesy.

"When a man claims to be the only man in the senate who has accomplished anything, he is a false alarm," the candidate asserted.

He asserted that congressional activities were the result of the efforts of great committees and while each individual made his contribution, it was the composite work that attained the highest levels.

Williams Given Credit.

Connally credited the proposed investigation of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas to Congressman Williams of Decatur, and when the measure came to the floor, Mayfield woke up, and then with information secured from Williams, he rushed to the senate and made his proposal and the measure is still buried in the senate committee on banks and currency.

As one of his own measures Connally set forth his measure for increasing fees on passports, which provided additional revenues amounting to $50,000,000 annually, making the state department with its branches in all corners of the globe, self-supporting. He also secured the passage of eight amendments to the army re-organization bill, and secured the enactment of the law which provides for the release of minors who have enlisted in the army or navy on the application of their parents.

Answering Mayfield's charge that he had been deprived of his first two years, Mr. Connally said that the statement was false for he was not deprived of one minute or of any of his authority as a senator. Nor did he lose any money for the government spent $60,000 on the investigation, and paid Mayfield $30,500 for his expenses, which included a $5,000 fee to William Zumbron, attorney for the Imperial Wizard.

The congressman asserted that a part of the party platform was a charge against the spending of large sums by big business in support of the candidates of their choice, and he recounted a number of the election scandals which had been brought before the senate, including the Vare case, Frank L. Smith of Illinois, and Newberry of Michigan, in addition to the Mayfield case.

Much Money Spent.

He charged that one organization had spent between $80,000 and $100,000 in securing Mayfield's nomination, and quoted testimony from the official record of the congressional investigation to prove his statements. He showed that Mayfield had received large sums from oil companies for his campaign fund, which were given under the threat of discipline from Mayfield, who was then railroad commissioner.

He charged that Mayfield voted against the seating of Smith of Illinois and yet expected Texas to vote to seat him again in the senate after hearing the facts in the case. He denied that he was indulging in "mud-slinging," but was only discussing a public record with those to whom it pertained. He declared that Mayfield was under obligations to those interests from whom he had pried campaign contributions.

Quoting a conversation between Dr. Hiram Evans and Judge Clark, he said that Mayfield was accepted as the Klan candidate because it was believed that he could "get to" big business, including the railroads and even Standard Oil. Connally charged that Mayfield did get to big business and to the railroads, but that he was under obligation to them. He scored Mayfield's vote with the Republicans in 1926, voting to seat Cyrus E. Woods on the interstate commerce commission, when it was known that Woods was a protege of the Pennsylvania lines, and that the railroad had several cases within the near future. He challenged Mayfield to explain why he voted to seat Woods and also why he solicited campaign funds from the oil companies.

Voted With Republicans.

He also charged Mayfield with jumping the party fence and voting with the Republicans on the Walsh power investigation resolution with the result that the probe is in the federal trade commission and not before congress.

He charged that Mayfield had campaigned against the late Senator Culberson, charging that he was not satisfactory in his activities, and yet is proposing re-election on a record which is termed "fairly satisfactory."

He scored Mayfield's stand on his Klan membership, asserting that by day he would swear he was not a member, and then at night don his robe and attend the meetings and swear that he was. He pointed out that one of the lobbyists opposing the Walsh resolution was Zumbrun, Klan attorney, and that Mayfield voted with the Republicans against the measure.

Declaring that the attack launched on the ballot box had touched the very foundation of government, Connally asserted that he was not and would not be under obligation to any special interests if elected to office, and that realizing the responsibility resting upon an individual as a senator, he would render service to the best of his ability in that capacity if elected.

CLAIM FRUITS AND VEGETABLES BEING SOLD TOO CHEAPLY

DALLAS, July 18.—(AP)—Alleged efforts of "chain" stores in the larger cities of the state to "turn public opinion away from the independent merchant" by selling fruits and vegetables at or below cost were discussed at today's session of the Texas Wholesale Fruit and Vegetable Dealers' Association here.

Alvin Beyer, member of the Association, recommended that the situation be reported to the Texas legislature of the federal trade commission. Mr. Beyer testified to instances where he said the "chain" concerns bought fruits and vegetables with the intention of "making no profit, but selling so cheaply that the little dealer will be run out of business."

METHODIST PASTOR BROWNWOOD GUILTY GROSS IMMORALITY

BROWNWOOD, July 18.—(AP)—The Rev. G. E. Cameron, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Brownwood, was expelled from the West Texas conference of the church yesterday after a jury of 12 ministers found him guilty of charges of "gross immorality" said to have been preferred by a Brownwood woman.

Following a quiet investigation, the Rev. Cameron first was suspended by a committee of three Methodist pastors, and when he appealed from the committee's action Bishop John M. Moore of Dallas appointed a jury of ministers, headed by the Rev. Dr. Emmett Hightower of Breckenridge, to hear his case.

Details of the trial and events leading up to it were not available. The jury was conducted behind closed doors, and only the jury's verdict was announced. Neither the Rev. Cameron nor members of the jury would make detailed statements to newspapermen.

STRINGENT MEASURES TAKEN CURB DISORDER IN TURBULENT NATION

ASSASSINATION OF GENERAL OBREGON WAS UNEXPECTED BLOW TO COUNTRY

MEXICO CITY, July 18. (AP) — Assassination of President-elect Albaro Obregon caused stringent measures today to curb disorder.

Censorship was in force. Police and soldiers patrolled streets here and roads of the surrounding country side. The army was prepared for emerggency, all troops being ordered to barracks and held in readiness in case of disorder.

There were unnumerable rumors of uprisings and other killings, but all proved untrue. Intense excitement prevailed everywhere, but neither the newspapers nor govrnmnt had any information of trouble anywhere in the republic. The war department issued an official commique saying the army would guarantee public peace.

President Calles was surrounded by a strong guard. Saloons were closed, as were theatres and other places of amusement.

Many of those known to be opposed to Obregon fled from Mexico City before the fury of his friends and supporters which was kept in bounds only by police precautions. Headquarters of Luis Morones, secretary of labor and Obregon's greatest political opponent, were surrounded by a guard at the instance of President Calles, who feared that there might be some attempts at violence.

Body Rests in State.

General Obregon's body rested in state in the great salon of the national palace which he had expected to occupy for a second time in December. It was surrounded by a guard of honor composed of members of the cabinet and the highest officers of the army and navy.

The one-armed warrior-president-elect was slain yesterday afternoon at a banquet in his honor by a man who approached under the guise of showing Obregon some cartoons he had drawn of the dinner. He fired six bullets into the general from a gun concealed among the sketches. The assassin was badly beaten by maddened friends of the slain general. He was rescued by police and rushed to jail. There he confessed the crime although his motive was not made known.

President Calles made a futile attempt to learn the motive of the crime from the assassin.

"It is useless," the slayer said, "for you to attempt to force me to tell anything. If I was resolute enough to kill Obregon in the presence of several hundred of his supporters, knowing full well that it meant my death, I am resolute enough to say nothing."

Assassin's Statement.

Newspapers had an unconfirmed report which attributed this statement to the assassin:

"I killed Obregon because I wanted Christ the King to reign completely and not partially."

The assassin gave only the name of Juan. In rumors he was referred to as Juan Escapulario. "Escapulario," Spanish for Scapula, a religious emblem, is a term of derision used by anti-Catholics in Mexico.

Police said the slayer's shirt had on it the initials, "J. J. G." They were investigating the theory that the assassin might be Jaun Jose Gonzales, alleged to have been the driver of the automobile from which bombs were thrown last year in an attempt to kill Obregon.

Detective Alvaro Basail, who investigated this attempt on Obregon's life, declared that the man had been among the previous plotters.

Basail, who was arrested some months ago on a charge of blackmailing Catholics, was looking out from behind the bars of his cell as the slayer was brought into the jail. He exclaimed:

"I recognize that face: I have his picture among my collection of plotters against Obregon."

Police Heads Changed.

President Calles issued an emergency order removing the heads of the Mexico City police department and putting in charge new officials who have been among Obregon's closest supporters. Apparently his purpose was to give the general's staunchest friends absolute control in handling developments following the assassination of their leader.

General Roberto Cruz was supplanted as chief of police by General Antonio Rios Zertuche. Arturo R. Orci, another Obregon adherest, became secretary general of the police headquarters.

Calles also issued preemptory orders that the police and army officials co-operate immediately in an investigation of the assassination in an effort to determine whether it was an irresponsible act or the result of a deep political plot.

Police said the assassination was one of a series planned by which a number of statesmen were to have been removed. Evidence that the crime was premediated was found in a paper discovered in the pocket of the slayer. It was addressed "to my family," and said:

"Knowing that I will die in carrying out my principle, I bid you farewell." It was signed simply "Juan."

American Marked.

Another slip of paper contained the names, "Romero, Topete, Robinson," and it was assumed that these names were of men also singled out for death. Thomas Robinson, young American mining engineer, recently married Ernestina Calles, daughter of President Calles. There are a number of Romeros prominent in Obregon ranks. Ricardo Topete is leader of the Obregon forces in congress.

The general opinion was that President Calles, whose term expires in December, would continue in the presidency. The Obregon political organization soon after the shooting proclaimed Calles its chief and the leader to whom that group looked to continue the policies of the revolutionary government.

The permanent congressional commission was called to meet today. This commission represents congress when that body is not in session. It was thought that the commission would either continue Calles as president or pave the way for his continuance in office.

General Obregon many times narrowly escaped assassination. Several times during the presidential campaign his headquarters were bombed.

Slaying Unexpected.

The slaying came unexpectedly. Obregon was sitting at a banquet given him by political supporters at the little town of San Angel, near Mexico City. While he chatted with his hosts, a band played Mexican music and a cartoonist drew sketches of the notables.

Suddenly the cartoonist rose and approached General Aaron Saenz, governor of Nuevo Leon, who was seated on Obregon's left. He asked permission to show the cartoons to the guest of honor.

The man turned to Obregon, pretended to show him the sketches and then with a gun which he had concealed under the papers fired directly into the president-elect's body.

Obregon slumped back in his chair, moaning. There was a dash for the slayer and guns and knives were pulled. He was in imminent danger, but General Cruz jumped in front of him and held off the men who thirsted for his blood.

"No, let's keep him, we want to find out who's back of this," Cruz shouted.

Obregon was in the greatest agony as he was carried to his automobile. He died before he reached it. In a few moments the body had been taken to his home, which was already surrounded by a large force of soldiers and police.

President Weeps.

President Calles, who was in Mexico City at the time of the tragedy, was advised immediately and hastened to San Angel. As he gazed at the body of his dead associate Calles wept. As he left he said:

"I have suffered such a shock that I am completely stunned. The death of General Obregon is of transcendental importance to the country, as he represented all the hopes and ambitions of the Mexican people. In my estimation the country has lost its greatest representative."

United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow hastened to the foreign office to present his condolences.

Obregon's body was taken to the national palace about midnight. It was received personally by Presi- Calles. Cabinet officials and high high officers of army and navy carried the casket on their shoulders to its resting place in the hall of the ambassadors. A military escort accompanied the body through the streets to the palace.

History of Obregon

General Alvaro Obregon, elected president of Mexico in September, 1920, following the establishment of a provisional government and the death of Carranza, began his military career when he was 28 years old. He had been a student, machinist, farmer and merchant in Nogales, Sonora, the town of his birth, where his family was well-known, and first took the field at the head of 400 neighbors to protect their property from the looting of organized bandits. He was medium sized, stockily built, a fine specimen of his Irish-Indian blood. It has been said of him that he was "the only Mexican revolutionary general who never lost a battle."

The keynote to Obregon's character he recently voiced in the following words: "I would rather teach the Mexican people the use of a toothbrush than to handle a rifle. I would rather see them in schools than upon battlefields. I prefer any day a good electrician, machinist, carpenter, or farmer to a soldier." His attitude toward foreign investors was shown at the same time by his declaration that "a country without capital is like a body without blood." He opposed Carranza's foreign policy and his antagonism toward the United States.

Obregon in 1911, quelled the revolution of Pascual Orosco in Chihuahua. Later, when President Madero had been slain and Huerta assumed the presidency, Obregon, who had retired minus an arm to his farm, again became a military leader.

Defeated Villa.

In 1914, he defeated Villa at Celaya and Trinidad after 33 days of fighting. It was as parties to the Plan of Gualeloupe, by which the rebels against Huerta's dictatorship took the name of constitutionalists, that Obregon and Carranza first met. When Carranza became president he appointed Obregon his minister of war. At the inauguration the general rode beside Carranza in the procession in Mexico City.

As minister of war, in 1916, Obregon went to the border and negotiated with Major Generals Hugh L. Scott and Frederick Funston for the withdrawal of the American troops sent into Mexico shortly after the raid of Columbus, N. M. Sometime later upon visiting Washington, he was the guest of President Wilson.

The break between Carranza and Obregon came about two years later, Obregon meanwhile having resigned his post. On June 1, 1919, having returned to Mexico from a visit to the United States, he announced his candidacy for the presidency, saying:

"I am, and will be, a faithful friend to those who with blood and brawn answered the call of the country against Huerta who murdered Madero. But I will be the enemy of those who pretend that their service must be paid for with the same liberties which Huerta usurped and which we swore to return to the country."

Obregon's pronunciamento, issued from his farm in Sonora angered Carranza. He immediately demoted him from his title of general of a division to a lieutenant colonelcy. The general had many supporters in the Mexican congress, however, and to some of them he owed his escape early in 1920 from a trap set for him.

Aids De La Huerta

Obregon went to Cuernevaca where he announced himself in sympathy with the secession of Sonora which, on April 11, had been declared by its Governor Adolfo de la Huerta, because of a threatened invasion by Carranza troops. Other states followed the example of Sonora and revolted against Carranza. Early in May Carranza fled from Mexico City and Governor de la Huerta, accompanied by Obregon and General Pablo Gonzales, entered the capital. Governor de la Huerta was chosen by the anti-Carranza leaders as the pre-provisional president of Mexico, pending an election.

General Obregon while declaring he would take the field against any foe in case of intervention, for years had expressed himself as friendly to the American government. In a message to the American people in 1919, he disclaimed hostility to America and pleaded for a better understanding between the people of the two countries. He challenged the justice of the United States senate's investigation of Mexican affairs.

General Obregon was twice married. His first wife, whom he married when he was 23, died in 1903 after two children had been born to them, a son Humberto and a daughter, Refugio. When he left the army he married again, his second wife being the daughter of Don Francisco Paia, of Sonora.

Many Presidents

Presidents of Mexico during the past 10 years have flitted across the political horizon in kaleidoscopic fashion, 12 men having occupied the nation's highest office during the period. Several ruled for years and one for 45 minutes only.

General Profirio Diaz, the grand old man of Mexico," ended his 30 years of almost continuous rule in May, 1911, when revolution overthrew him. Francisco Leon de la Barra succeeded to the power and, was president for several months, being followed by Francisco I. Madero, the hero of the revolution against Diaz. Madero was president until February, 1913, when the Huerta uprising unseated him and eventually cost him his life. Pedro Lascurain, a Mexico City lawyer, then took up the reins of government, being inaugurated at 7:01 p. m. on February 19, 1913, and continuing in power until 7:46 p. m. of the same day—a 45-minute tenure.

Then came the Huerta regime, the "Iron Man" remaining in power until July, 1914, when revolution again swept the republic and General Huerta fled. Francisco Carbajal was president for a month and then followed a period of disturbances, various rebel bands alternately holding Mexico City but with no apparent head of the government. It was during this period that General Obregon, chief of staff for First Chief Carranza, occupied the capital. Then followed brief administrations of Eulalio Gutierrez, Roque Gonzales Garza and Francisco Chazaro, all characterized by revolutions.

In August, 1914, Venustiano Carranza assumed the executive power as the First Chief of the revolution but he was not formally declared constitution president until March, 1917. The revolution of May 1920, drove him from Mexico City and caused the selection on June 1, 1920 of Adolfo de la Huerta as provisional president. He served until General Obregon, the duly elected candidate in the September elections, was inducted into office November 30, 1920.

In the 12 presidents named, five are dead. General Porfirio Diaz died an exile in France and Madero was killed "while attempting to escape from prison." General Huerta died in El Paso, Texas, and Carranza was assassinated while attempting to flee to Vera Cruz from Mexico City. Francisco Leon de la Barra became an exile and has lived for years in Paris where he is an adviser of the French government. Lascurain has been a Mexico City attorney and Carbajal went to live in the United States. Cutierrez became a member of the national senate and Gonzales Garza prominent in Mexico City politics. Charazo has lived in Mexico City but has not been actively in politics. Adolfo de la Huerta served as President Obregon's secretary of the treasury.

Vatican Interested In Obregon's Death

ROME, July 18.—(AP)—News of the death of President-elect Obregon of Mexico produced considerable impression at the Vatican because only recently the congregation for extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs met several times to examine and discuss a possible modus vivendi concerning the status of the church in Mexico. This possible plan is supposed to have had Obregon's approval and it is understood would have been accepted once he became president.

Cardinal Wannutelli, dean of the congregation, had supported the project for ending the strife by granting some concessions in view of the changed situation in Mexico. The congregation also asked the Mexican archbishop, Monsignor Ruis Y Flores to appear before it several times in order to give explanations regarding various matters with which the Cardinals were not acquainted. The archbishop, who has settled in Rome as a member of the faculty of the Latin American College, fully satisfied the congregation on various important points.

Exiled Bishop Grieved.

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—Bishop Pascual Diaz, exiled bishop of the Roman Catholic church in Mexico, regrets the assassination of President-elect Obregon.

"I regret it with all my heart," Bishop Diaz said. "As an apostle of peace and reconciliation this news shocks me terribly. No good can come of such violent measures. This can only create further strife in our country and make matters much worse than ever before. Peace must come from love and not from hate."

The bishop said he did not believe the assassination had anything to do with the controversy between church and state. "It is not the way the church fights its battles," he said. "The assassination probably emanated from the camp of General Obregon's political enemies. But that, of course, is only a surmise."

Assassin Is Talking.

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—(AP)—Antonio Rios Zertuche, who was named chief of police by President Calles immediately after the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, said today that Juan Escapularlo, the assassin, was "now commencing to talk."

Senor Zertuche expects further arrests and believes he will learn who were the master minds of the crime.

Smith Sends Condolences.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—Governor Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, today sent the following telegram to President Calles of Mexico:

"With a feeling of horror I learned of the assassination of President-elect Obregon. May I prevail upon your excellency to convey to his family and to the Mexican people my sincere condolences with them in this great tragedy."

BELGIUM APPROVES KELLOGG PLAN FOR OUTLAWING OF WAR

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—Belgium, the fifth of the fourteen nations invited by the United States to participate in the conclusion of a multilateral treaty for the renunciation of war has informed Secretary Kellogg that the treaty text as submitted meets its "full approbation."

In a note, which has caused much satisfaction to Secretary Kellogg and American government officials, the Belgian government said it had examined "with lively sympathy" the invitation of June 23 in which that country was asked to participate as an original signatory to the anti-war treaty.

Germany, France, the Irish Free State and Italy, in addition, to Belgium, now have given their unqualified acceptance to the text of the treaty in its revised form as submitted by Secretary Kellogg.

Britain Accepts.

Replying to a question, the foreign secretary said:

"As regards the signature of the treaty, his Majestiy's government will be happy to sign it at such time and place as may be agreeable to the United States government."

The announcement was greeted with cheers.

When asked if there were any reservations in the reply, Sir Austen said that the text would be published Friday morning and that he could not make any statement regarding the contents until the time for publication.

Poland Is Ready.

WARSAW, July 18.—(AP)—A note accepting the text of the Kellogg treaty for the outlawry of war has been delivered by the Polish government to John B. Stetson Jr., American minister to Poland.

"The principles expressed in the project, being entirely in conformity with the aims which Poland steadfastly has adhered to in her foreign policies, I have the honor to inform you that the Polish government accepts the text of the aforesaid pact and declares itself ready to sign it," said the note which was delivered by M. Wysocki, under-secretary for foreign affairs.

HALF OF MEMBERS TEXAS SENATE MAY BE NEW MATERIAL

FIFTEEN ARE HOLDOVERS BUT FOUR OF THESE SEEKING OTHER OFFICES

By L. B. DILBECK
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

AUSTIN, July 19.—(AP)—A possibility that only about half the old Texas senate will take its seat in the 41st legislature next year is apparent from the present situation.

Fifteen of the 31 senators are "holdovers" who are elected to serve through 1930, but four of them are running for other offices. If elected, they will leave only 11 holdovers coming back. Eight of the remaining 16 are running for re-election, only two having no opposition. If five of the eight are re-elected, at least 16 Senators who were here in the 40th legislature will be back. This does not count the "holdovers" running for other offices. In case they all are defeated and come back, the total, based on the assumption that five of the eight running for re-election win out, would be 20 of the old group.

The two contingencies mentioned, however, is expected to keep the total of returning senators between 15 and 20.

Eight of the old senators definitely will not return. A new solon will be elected from District 3 to succeed I. D. Fairchild, fatally injured in an automobile accident this spring. Senator Lloyd Price of Texarkana has moved from the First district to Fort Worth to join a law firm and will be succeeded by a new man. Besides these two, the following are not running for re-election: H. L. Lewis, Navasota, District No. 5; Pierce B. Ward, Clebarne, District No. 12; Julius Real, Kerrville, District No. 26; W. H. Bledsoe, Lubbock, District No. 30, and E. W. Reid, Canyon, District No. 31. They all will be supplanted by new faces.

Of the four holdovers seeking other offices, Senator J. W. Hall of Houston is reported to be making a good race for tax collector of Harris county, and Robert A. Stuart of Fort Worth for Tarrant county district attorney. Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston is running for congress. Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas is a candidate for lieutenant governor.

The only two senators running for re-election fortunate enough to have opponents are Thomas G. Pollard of Tyler and B. F. Berkeley, Alpine.

Others seeking re-election are: Charles R. Floyd, Paris, opposed by State Representative Tom Deberry of Bogota; Edgar Will, Waco, opposed by State Representative W. R. Poage, Waco; R. S. Bowers, Caldwell, now of Austin, administration floor leader in the 40th legislature, opposed by John W. Hornsby of Austin; Carl C. Harden, Stephenville, opposed by Fred W. Stroupe, Temple; J. R. Smith, Breckenridge, opposed by Oliver Cunningham.

Holdovers besides those mentioned as running for other offices are: Miss Margie Neal, Carthage; H. F. Triplett, Beaumont; Julian P. Greer, Poynor; Ed Westbrook, Sherman; Joe M. Moore, Greenville; Gus Russek, Schulenberg; A. J. Wirtz, Seguin; Eugene Miller, Weatherford; W. D. McFarlane, Graham; Walter Woodward, Coleman; Archie Parr, Benavides.

HEART OF PEOPLE STILL SYMPATHETIC NEWSPAPER PROVES

STORY OF HARDSHIPS OF AGED COUPLE BRING INSTANT HELP IN AUSTIN

AUSTIN, July 18.—(AP)—A newspaper appeal to the "Good Samaritan" instincts of its readers worked a seeming miracle for an aged, exhausted, semi-delirious couple who staggered into Austin, harnessed to a small wagon carrying their meager earthly goods to Del Rio from Waco.

Donations which poured in after the Austin Statesman printed the story of hardship and weary miles of dusty roads, provided a team of jennies to pull the wagon, and food, clothing and pocket money to send J. M. Wilkerson, 59, and "Mag" his 62 year old Cherokee Indian wife, on their way.

Like figures in a dream, they struggled into Austin pulling their dusty wagon. Thirsty and hungry, they barely were able to tell their story. Their jennies had been poisoned, they said. Determined to reach home at Del Rio, they decided to tramp along, pushing and pulling the cart. At first they were suspicious of proferred help but finally were induced to halt and rest.

The new jenny team was donated by the Salvation Army. Food and clothing was given by others, some driving from as far as Fredericksburg with gifts. Cash contributions totalled $42.50.

Local Furniture Dealer Talks of Color Importance

CHICAGO, July 18.—(Spl.)—The decorative importance of color in modern interior furnishing and decoration grows greater year by year, says Mr. S. J. Miles, of the Miles Furniture company, of Corsicana. He attended the furniture style show in the American Furniture Mart to choose stock for his store for the coming year, and to acquire new ideas in keeping his community in step with furniture developments.

"In upholstered furniture, in hangings, in wood finishes and even in refrigerators, stoves and china, the quest for gay colors is noticeable. Here, at the American Furniture Mart I have seen hundreds of designs and color combinations, original productions and importations, which show that the drab, colorless furniture of former years has been put on the scrap heap.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL SERMONS BY LOCAL METHODIST MINISTER

The Rev. H. P. Shrader, local superannuate Methodist minister, has just had printed a pamphlet entitled "Two Semi-Centennial Sermons," and they are now on sale. The titles are "What Manner of Love" and "The Manifestations of the Son of God and the Purpose Thereof." Both sermons are interesting and well worth the price and the time it will take to read them.

The book is neatly printed and on the fly leaf bears this inscription: "Being no longer able to preach from the pulpit the author sends forth this little volume with the prayer that it may be a blessing and a comfort to its readers." Another notation is that "This little book is affectionately dedicated to my wife and children." The two sermons fill nineteen pages and are full of helpful and uplifting through from beginning to end.

A feature of the little volume is a word of appreciation of the author by the publishers, the Marr Printing company, giving in a few words high praise of the life and work of the author by one who has known and lived neighbors to him for fifteen years. The price of the volume is 35 cents.

INTO THE DESERT SOLITUDES GO LEADERS TO MAKE READY

After Sensational Experience of Conversion on Damascus Road, Saul Sought Retirement—Did He Dwell at Petra? — Seclusion's Part in Preparation of a Career.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

Everybody who has ever been to Petra, the mysterious and marvelous cliff-carved city in the mountains of Arabia, between the Sinai Peninsula and the great desert, the

"rose-red city, half as old as time,"

which was lost for a thousand years, delights to dwell upon the many theories concerning its past. Dean Stanley erroneously located Kadesch-Barnea there. Another conjecture is that Paul spent his Arabian sojourn there, for Aretas, King of Nabatea, of which country Petra seems to have been the capital, was in Paul's day the ruler of Dabmascus.

Nobody knows. I hardly think the idea is tenable, for it was to the desert, and not to such a busy metropolis as Petra then was that the great apostle fled in order to find himself, after his sensational conversion by a vision on the Damascus Road. He himself simply says that he went to Arabia; and the period of seclusion and meditation and study may have been anywhere from one to three years.

Since the great scholar, Paul, with his marvellous personal vision of Jesus, needed this protracted quiet time apart from men in order to prepare for his mission; since the Saviour Himself retired again and again to the desert for the renewal of His spiritual power, we certainly have a mighty message for our own day and its leadership. After a short ministry at Damascus and a visit to Jerusalem, Paul had a further period of quiet preparation, which lasted from five to ten years, in his old home at Tarsus. As we enter upon six months of study of his matchless mission and achievements, let us keep in the background of our thought this prolonged training in the desert and in obscurity.

Our Jazzed Generation

This turbulent era in which we live needs something else besides what it has. Our world is overstocked with radios and autos and motion pictures and entertainments and newspapers and books and adventures and conventions. There are too many things doing for human spirits to have a chance at real life. All of us are too busy to think. The day's favorite diversion is to try to get away from ourselves. Man's spirit is breaking beneath the load of machinery which he has taken upon his back. Our new phrase, "jazzed up," expresses modern existence.

Whereas, real happiness, and real power, may be found only in the serener processs of thought and of normal human relationship. "Conversation is a lost art," is the common complaint. Sturdy, independent thinking has quite gone out of fashion; "mass psychology" has taken its place.

Along mechanical lines, and in the direction of organization and efficiency," remarkable skill is being shown in our time. But of profound thought concerning life, and duty and God there really is little. We nowadays have droves of officials of religious organizations, who are continually herding in conventions and and conferences; but of real leaders almost none, and still fewer prophets. The absence of great voices from pulpits and classrooms and editorial columns and books, and public offices is a tragedy of our times that is graver than the extravagances of the younger generation. If only we could send our potential personalities into the desert for a time, following the trail of Moses and Jesus and Paul, there might emerge some adequate leadership for this tumultuous and uncertain day. It seems as if God Himself waits upon preparation and soul-travail for the securing of fit personalities to carry on His plans.

Better Than Up-To-Date.

Up-to-dateness is regarded as a cardinal virtue by our age. In truth, it is our deadly sin. Millions of persons are desperately in debt today for no other reason than their own mad scramble to be "up-to-date" in the matter of automobiles and radios and other unessential pleasures. Even the most superficial observer must perceive that we are fashion-mad. That devil's ditty, "Everybody's doing it," is the song of our real social revolution. Most persons are more afraid of being out of the fashion than doing wrong. The quiet, personal virtues of individualism seem at a discount.

Of course, a change is coming: signs of it are already apparent. As soon as men and women, and young men and women in particular, get gumption enough to do a little independent thinking, society will recover its lost liberty. If a fair percentage of folk follow Paul into the deserts of meditation and preparation, they will return to call the rest of us back to sanity and soul-sovereignty. We shall have a revival of reason and righteousness and real religion as soon as we shut our ears to the racket of our raucous times, and to all the clamant ballyhoo that earmarks this period; and begin to see life clear and see it whole. The primary lesson of this Lesson is that Paul's first step in his new life and mission was to go apart, to be alone with himself and with God.

Telling What We Know.

Then Paul went back to Damascus with a message. He had something to say. His own experience, and its significance, became his story. He had undergone a profound change, and he interpreted it profoundly. Not all persons can read the meaning of their own experience. A great novelist may so portray an ordinary life's affairs that they assume serious significance for multitudes. Paul read what had befallen him in the light of its largest import. In his conversion he not only saw Christ; but also, after his long study and meditation, he saw its relationship to the character of Christ and to His will. The profundities and sublimities of Paul's epistles were not extemporaneous: they first flowered and fruited in the desert of Arabia. So he was equipped to bear a witness that confounded the Jews.

Thus it befell that the persecutor became the persecuted. Dramatic was the reversal when the man who once, as chosen Jewish emissary, sought the life of Christians, became himself a Christian whose life was sought by the Jews. But Paul found himself in a new fellowship with new protection; and his Christian brethren let him down from the walls of Damascus in a hamper, while the hounds of hate bayed ineffectively at the city gates. When one becomes a thoroughgoing Christian he takes on Christ's friends as his own, as well as Christ's foes.

So also at Jerusalem, after bighearted Barnabas had vouched for Paul to the brotherhood, he was again delivered from the relentless persecution of the oft-baffled Jews, by the disciples who secretly spirited him away to Caesarea, the seaport, and aboard a ship for the harbor of Tarsus. What a brotherhood the Christian fellowship has been throughout the ages! No other organization on earth is so large, so widely distributed or so helpful as the Christian Church; whose greatest member was Paul, the prepared pioneer.

Mrs. Rutherford Closes Her Summer Class With Recital

On Tuesday evening at 8:30 in the school auditorium at Richland, Mrs. L. A. Rutherford presented part of her piano pupils in recital, assisted by five of Miss Rose Sizemore's class of expression and dancing; Miss Jewel Albritton, junior pupil of Mrs. M. S. Cook, and Eugene Edmondson, ten years old nephew of Mrs. Rutherford, who pleased the audience very much with his mandolin numbers. Also one at the piano.

Miss Albritton in her usual way, gave a delightful reading which every one enjoyed. The piano numbers were beautifully rendered, while Miss Sizemore's pupils were at their best and delighted the audience with their readings and dancing, especially little Wynona Melton, who danced and read with perfect rythm and ease.

Miss Sizemore is to be commended for the splendid training of these little folks. Accompanist for the evening was Miss Marjorie Taylor, who was in a great way responsible for the success of the program, which was well rendered in every way.

This was Mrs. Rutherford's fourth program for the season.

The first on May 28, when she presented 14 of her pupils in joint recital with Mrs. W. F. Senor and the McCleary Sisters school of expression at the Carnegie library. Second, her Richland pupils and others of the school gave an operetta in the Richland school auditorium May 30. Then on June 22, her Montfort pupils were presented in recital assisted by Wynona and Wayne Melton, Miss Doris Newton (violin), Miss Vera May Stone and Jewell Albritton (readings).

DEMOCRATS OF OLD SCHOOL ISSUES CALL TO LOYAL DEMOCRATS

ATLANTA, Ga., July 19. —(AP)— Hoke Smith, former governor and senator and last living member of President Cleveland's cabinet today was sponsor of a call to "loyal democrats" of Georgia for a militant campaign on behalf of the democratic presidential ticket. Declaring himself a democrat since the days members of his party were "obliged to arm themselves to reach the ballot box" the former senator deplored the "inactivity" of the constituted authorities of the democratic party in Georgia for having "taken no steps toward an organized, aggressive campaign." He believed action was particularly imperative in view of the "widespread and aggressive campaign already inaugurated against the nominees."

Yellow Fever At Rio Janeiro Proves Fatal Twenty-Nine

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)— Reports of yellow fever at Rio De Janeiro and three other points in Brazil have caused the public health service to send special instructions to quarantine officers at all American ports to exercise the utmost care to prevent entry of the disease into this country. A report just received from the American counsel at Rio says seventy-nine cases of yellow fever and twenty-nine deaths were officially reported there between June 1 and July 14.

TOM LOVE FILES REHEARING MOVE IN APPEALS COURT

SAN ANTONIO, July 18. —(AP)— Motion for rehearing of the case in which Thomas B. Love, Dallas candidate for lieutenant governor, was denied a mandamus to compel the Cameron county democratic committee to place his name on the ballot for the democratic primaries, was filed today in the fourth court of civil appeals. Love's name was barred because he refused to support the party presidential nominee, Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Chief Justice William S. Fly, who Tuesday upheld the ruling of the Cameron county district court in denying Love's plea, promised that the court would act "at the earliest moment possible."

Sam Spears, Love's counsel of San Benito, who filed the motion, maintained that the primary committee had no right to refuse to place Love's name on the ballot. He also attempted to show where the appellate court had erred in other parts of its decision.

Before any action can be taken attorneys for V. W. Taylor, Cameron democratic chairman, must be notified, Chief Justice Fly explained.

For Commissioner, General Land Office

J. T. ROBISON

OF MORRIS COUNTY
FOR RE-ELECTION.

Concerning Mr. Robinson
The Houston Chronicle Says:

THE LAND LAWS VALID

Of outstanding importance, even in these stirring political days, is the decision of the Texas Supreme Court, holding valid all major laws used by the State in administering, selling and leasing state school and university lands.

The decision represents a sweeping victory for Land commissioner J. T. Robison. He won his contentions against both the attorney general and attorneys for the university. Apparently the veteran commissioner comprehended the situation better than did the newcomers on the scene.

Three acts were involved—with property values worth many millions of dollars at stake: 1. The so-called relinquishment act, which gave purchasers of public school lands an interest in the minerals under the land. 2. The law governing the sale of univertisy lands, and the leasing of them for mineral development. 3. The validity of the law authorizing individual counties to lease their school lands for mineral development.

If any of these laws had been declared invalid, oil leasing rights worth great fortunes would have become worthless. Firms and individuals which took out permits in good faith would have found all their work gone for nothing. The state would have had to evolve entirely new methods of getting oil production on its lands.

And, of course, some discredit might have been cast on Commissioner Robison for having pursued an unconstitutional course in his efforts to foster development of the state lands.

Now, however, all laws are declared valid; Mr. Robison's views held correct and his administrative actions indorsed.

That is fortunate. Mr. Robison is a most able and faithful official, and must be returned to office. The parties who have invested their capital in operation on state land have their interests safeguarded. Oil revenue will continue to accrue to the state.

If anyone still believes the laws in question are unwise ones, then he can present his views to the state legislature, and possibly new laws will be adopted. But there will be no retroactive features. Everything that so far has been done will stand.

Certainly that is best for all parties concerned.

PARTY BOLTERS IN EFFORT TO DEFEAT REGULAR NOMINEE

"ANTI-SMITH DEMOCRATS" CHOSEN AS NAME BY DISGRUNTLED POLITICIANS

DALLAS, July 17. (AP)—Terming Governor Alfred E. Smith's promise to point the pay to modification of the liquor law as treason, some 500 democrats of Texas meeting here today organized a state-wide body to fight the candidacy of the New York governor and work "unceasingly for the election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency of the United States."

About a dozen former democratic leaders of the state, ministers and one Methodist bishop flayed Governor Smith for his modification stand and predicted that if he were elected to the highest office in the land he "would turn America over to the liquor interests."

Although declaring the United States was facing one of the most serious crises, the speakers were in accord in predicting the election of Hoover. Speakers asserted that the democratic party would suffer the greatest defeat in its history and predicted that more than 300,000 democrats would bolt the party in Texas.

Terms Majority Rule Insult

Perhaps the strongest indictment of the meetings was that made by Dr. J. W. Hunt of Abilene, president of McMurray College, who declared that the "vilest insult ever flung in the face of Southern people was the action taken by the national democratic convention in Houston when it nominated Governor Smith."

He not only delivered a tirade against Governor Smith and the democratic convention, but scathingly denounced Senator Joe Robinson, democratic nominee for the vice-presidency.

"Robinson went down there and sold his home to the party for the sake of a wet nomination and a wet vote," Dr. Hunt said. "I had rather vote for Al Smith than Robinson. The Arkansas senator will not get enough votes in West Texas to line the inside of his hat. Coin and corn is the shibboleth now of the democrats.

"The Houston convention was a damnable travesty on the name of democracy ever pulled off in the nation. They say that they will put us out of the party if we bolt the ticket, but in November they will find they have no party," he shouted. This brought cheers and virtually every one in the auditorium stood as they applauded.

Dr. Hunt said that he had just returned from a speaking tour of West Texas and asserted that his part of the state would vote overwhelmingly for Hoover.

Collins Keynoter.

V. A. Collins, former state senator, was the "keynoter." He warned that he was not speaking for any organization, but merely expressing his own views and beliefs as a citizen. "But you must not lose sight of this fact," Collins said, "we are gathered here to do but one thing—organize a campaign for the defeat of Al Smith and the election of Herbert Hoover." He was interrupted by cheers.

Collins declared that he had been a life-long democrat and had never voted for a republican, but this was one time he was going to break his rule. He spoke of the democratic pledge, which every democrat is required to take—that we will support the party nominee. "If that pledge ever was made, or if there is such a pledge, it does not exist now," Collins declared. "Smith repudiated the democratic platform when he sent the message of treason to Houston, and this act alone would nullify any party pledge," he shouted.

Unfit to Be Nominee.

When Al Smith in his message to the Houston convention said that he would point the way to modification of the liquor law, he then became a traitor to the constitution of the United States. You talk about moral courage, why Smith is a man of immoral courage and unfit to be the democratic nominee," Collins thundered.

"It took us prohibitionists 100 years to accomplish our purpose and it will take Al Smith and his cohorts of non-English speaking people a million years to repeal the 18th amendment. Their only recourse is to nullify the law. If has been upheld by the supreme court, but listen, most of our high court justices are aged men, and if Al Smith is elected the next supreme court will be an "Al Smith court" and they will interpret this law the way Al Smith wants it interpreted," Collins charged.

"A man who will strike down the 18th amendment also will strike down section three, article six of the constitution—that which deals with religious freedom," Collins shouted.

Permanent Organization.

After the address of Collins the meeting went into permanent organization. Dr. J. D. Sandefer, president of Simmons university, Abilene, was unanimously elected permanent chairman; Alvin Moody of Houston, vice-chairman, and Mrs. Josephine Collins of Dallas, official of the Texas W. C. T. U., secretary.

The committee or organization follows: G. W. Armstrong, Arlington; Marshall Hicks, San Antonio; B. D. Sartin, Wichita Falls; Alvin Moody, Houston; Mrs. J. T. Bloodworth, Fort Worth; Mrs. T. A. Kindred, Mexia; Mrs. Larry Mills, Dallas; Mrs. Morgan Cox, Dallas; C. F. Collins, Dallas; Oak McKenzie, Bryan, and R. Atticus Webb, Dallas.

The resolutions committee was: Bishop J. M. Moore, Dallas; Dr. H. G. Bowden, Fort Worth; O. B. Colquitt, Dallas; Dr. J. B. Cranfill, Dallas; Mrs. Claude De Van Watts, Austin; Dr. C. M. Rosser, Dallas, and Dr. E. A. Newell, Colorado.

At the afternoon session the meeting will hear other speakers and adopt a platform and resolutions.

DALLAS, July 17.—(AP)—Declaring that any man who would strike down the eighteenth amendment also would strike down section 3, article 6 of the constitution pertaining to religious freedom, former State Senator V. A. Collins of Dallas in his opening speech before the anti-Smith convention here today urged every democratic voter in Texas to vote for Herbert Hoover for president and repudiate "the power of iniquity."

Approximately 350 persons were present when the rally convened at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Collins declared that there were two sides in the fight for the presidency of the United States. On one side, he said, were the ministers and god-fearing citizens of the country; on the other side were the powers of iniquity. He was constantly interrupted by cheering.

Extravagant Predictions

Mr. Collins predicted that Governor Alfred E. Smith would not carry a single county in Texas except those nominally republican. He

Women to Bolt Also.

SAN ANTONIO, July 17.—(AP)—Members of the San Antonio Protestant Women's association today joined the ranks of Texas democratic "bolters" when they decided to work against the presidential candidacy of Governor Smith of New York.

Mrs. George W. Jones, president of the association, said the organization includes 20,000 members who are preparing an active campaign against Smith and "undoubtedly for Hoover."

Party Bolters Busy.

DALLAS, July 17.—(AP)—Representatives of Texas democrats who have said they will not vote for Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York for president met here today to formulate plans for a militant campaign designed to defeat the national democratic ticket in this state at the November elections.

On the other hand, leaders of a faction of the republican state party who have announced they will not support Herbert Hoover but will vote for Governor Smith prepared to back the New York governor with their votes and possibly with an organized campaign in his behalf.

The meeting of democrats was called by more than 100 persons who have been prominently identified with Texas' political life for many years and included several to bring about the defeat of the democratic nominee. "We are not promoting any candidate for state office," he declared.

Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurray College at Abilene, pronounced the invocation when the convention convened.

"We face a national crisis," he said. "We pray for deliverance from the hands of the spoilers in this our hour of moral suicide."

To Name Officers

Election of officers and outlining of the state-wide anti-Smith campaign was scheduled at the afternoon session.

Mr. Collins based his assertion that Governor Smith would carry only the counties nominally republican upon his opinion that most of the voters in those counties were "wet." The few republican counties in the state have little voting strength, he said. They are sparsely settled communities on the Mexican border.

"Anti-Al Smith democrats" was chosen as the official name of the organization shortly before the noon recess.

Dr. J. D. Sandefer, president of Simmons University, Abilene, was elected permanent chairman of the meeting. Alvin Moody, Houston, was named vice chairman, with Mrs. Josephine Collins, Dallas, secretary.

promised Herbert Hoover a 10,000 majority in Dallas county.

"I don't know if there still is a Ku Klux Klan organization in Texas," said Mr. Collins, "but if they are opposed to Al Smith I wish there were 10 million of them in the state."

The speaker reiterated the fact that the organization meeting today was interested only in the forming of a state-wide campaign college presidents, church men and party leaders. Among these was Dr. J. D. Standifer, president of Simmons university; Dr. James Winford Hunt, president of McMurray college; Dr. John Harmon Burma, president of Trinity university; former governor Oscar B. Colquitt; former state senator V. A. Collins; and the Rev. Attitus Webb, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of Texas.

Program of Action.

Leaders of the insurgent democrats have drawn up a program to be submitted to the meeting which includes plans for the formation of state, county and precinct committees, selection of a state campaign manager who will direct the battle before the November elections through a speakers bureau, and the probable preparation of a slate of democratic presidential electors who will be instructed to vote for Mr. Hoover.

Offsetting the Dallas meeting of democrats in vigor of pronouncements if not in numbers were several leaders of a republican faction which has been affliated with Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach, Texas' only republican congressman, and has bitterly fought the regular republican organization headed by National Committeeman R. B. Creager. Two of these leaders, J. M. O'Hara, and W. M. (Gooseneck Bill) McDonald, negro announced they would bolt the republican national ticket in November and would vote for Governor Smith.

In a statement, O'Hara declared that "patronage peddling in Texas overshadows by far that which has been developed in connection with the republican investigations in Georgia" and that methods used by the Creager organization to collect money from its "patronage organization are highly illegal and bordering on strongarm methods." The statement declared that 250,000 Texas republicans will bolt their party and vote for Governor Smith.

"SOUTHERN DRY DEMOCRATS" MEET PLAN SMITH FIGHT

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 18.—(AP)—An invited group of "Southern dry democrats" gathered here today to plan a campaign against Governor Smith of New York.

The meeting was called shortly after the nomination of the New York governor by Bishop James Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and Dr. A. J. Barton of Atlanta, a prominent Baptist, who appealed to the South to defeat what they termed "The Wet, Tammany Candidate." Formulation of plans for the election of supporters of prohibition to congress also was included in the purpose of the meeting.

An open session will be held tonight, following an executive meeting called for three o'clock this afternoon. Bishop Cannon declined to say who would speak tonight. It was expected that this wwould be the only meeting of the two day session open to the public.

Although declining to announce the names of those responding to his appeal, Cannon said he was well pleased with the attendance. "We will have all we expected at the conference and more," he said, "we couldn't hold it down to the point where we first had intended."

SHALE ENCOUNTERED BY DRILLERS TEST IN BAZETTE AREA

Shale was occupying the drillers on the J. K. Hughes et al Lichlyter No. 1 near Bazette at about 800 feet Wednesday morning, and the bit was being sent steadily downward. Day shifts only will be used for the time being on the test.

Considerable interest is being manifested in this test with operations in other sections of the East Central Texas area being almost at a standstill, with the exception of the development of the Humble holdings in Anderson and Cherokee county.

Slack conditions in the local fields have caused several supply houses to close their branches here, while others have materially reduced their forces.
